MTB The ultimate classic mountain biking trail in Garda Trentino

Going anticlockwise, start gently along the cycle path towards Passo d'Ampola before tackling the long climb up to Tremalzo. It's less arduous from this side, as the entire climb is on tarmac. When the road comes to an end, take a well-deserved rest at the inn or simply enjoy the view and watch the paragliders taking off. You still have to ascend a bit further to the highest point of the tour at the Corno di Marogna tunnel before you can look forward to the long, scenic descent. Riding on old military roads, some of which were built daringly into the rocks, follow the border between Trentino and Lombardy until you reach the Bocca dei Fortini pass, where you branch off to the north and return to Lake Ledro and finally to the starting point in Pieve. Caution! The route is not technically challenging and runs along wide trails and roads, but in some places there is a risk of falling off. A defensive riding style is recommended!
