MTB Short and easy tour through open air art gallery, perfect with kids

This circuit is just over 8 km long but still has a lot to offer. It takes you right around the village of Drena, through the chestnut groves it is known for, and to an unusual open-air gallery. It's definitely worth stopping to marvel at the various sculptures and animals created by over forty artists from all over the world on a series of beautifully curated paths. This mountain bike route is not especially challenging from a technical point of view and much of it is on tarmacked paths. On the way back to Drena from the open air gallery, you can enjoy some stunning views down into the Sarca Valley and finally, of course, of the beautifully situated Drena Castle, which you can also visit.
